This is a limited engagement. I/We understand that the fee is for preparing the requested QDROs and/or EDROs only and does not include other services, including litigation, testimony or depositions. Unless you instruct us otherwise, we generally seek pre-approval of our orders prior to you entering them with the court. It is your responsibility (or your attorney(s)) for entering completed orders with the court and mailing them to the plan for implementation upon our instruction.

Schedule DC

Instructions: Complete this Schedule DC for each award from a Defined Contribution Plan. Defined Contribution plans have individual investment accounts and include 401(k), 403(b), 457, profit sharing, tax sheltered annuities (including TIAA-CREF annuities), employee stock ownership plans and money purchase pensions. If you need assistance completing Schedule DC, please call us at 248-865-4700.

DC-1. Defined Contribution Plan

Plan's Official Name: _____

Plan Sponsor (employer, union, etc.): _____

Plan Address for QDRO or EDRO submission: _____

Name & Telephone #/e-mail address of Plan contact: * _____

* To expedite QDRO or EDRO preparation, Participant should request published rules/procedures for QDRO/EDRO drafters and send them to us.

DC-2. Plan Participant. This is the person whose account is being divided.

Plan Participant: Husband Wife

Hire date (enter date, estimated date or whether before or after marriage date): _____

Participant currently employed at Plan Sponsor? Yes No, ended on _____

DC-3. Division Date. This is the date as of which the Non-Participant's ("Alternate Payee's") portion of the Participant's account is based. Any contributions made after this date and the earnings on those contributions belong solely to the Participant. (check one box only)

Divorce/Separation Date Date of QDRO/EDRO Other date _____

DC-4. The Alternate Payee is awarded: (check one box only)

_____ % of the Participant's entire account at the Division Date.

_____ % of only the marital portion of the Participant's account at the Division Date.

$_____ of the Participant's account at the Division Date. If this box is checked, should the Alternate Payee receive any investment income and investment gains and losses from the Division Date to the date(s) of distribution? Yes No, the award is unadjusted.

Other (specify): _____

Instructions: Complete DC-5 only if the award in DC-4 is a percentage award. This means that the first or second box of DC-4 was checked.

DC-5. Loans. Should the Alternate Payee's award be based upon account values that include or exclude any outstanding loan? (check one box only)

Exclude the loan balance. Alternate Payee effectively repays a proportionate part of loan. This choice is generally used if the loan proceeds were shared by the divorcing parties or used jointly. This produces a smaller award to the Alternate Payee.

Include the loan balance. Alternate Payee does not effectively contribute toward loan repayment. This choice is generally used if the loan proceeds were retained or used by the participant exclusively (for example, if the participant raided the account because of the impending divorce). This produces a larger award for the Alternate Payee.

Not applicable. Plan does not permit loans or the Participant has never borrowed from the Plan.

This is the end of Schedule DC.

Instructions: Complete DB-5 only if the first box was checked for DB-4. Item DB-5 pertains to methods of determining the marital portion. For more information, please refer to our article entitled “Coverture Methods” which is available in the Articles section of our website at www.QDRO.PRO.

DB-5. Coverture Options. If Alternate Payee’s benefit is based upon a portion of the marital benefit, the marital benefit is determined as follows: (check one box only; if the Participant’s hire date was after the marriage date, do not select the Tracking Method or the Accrued Coverture Method; if the Participant’s retirement benefit payments commenced before the Division Date, do not select the Prospective Coverture Method)

- Accrued Coverture Method (most common): The Accrued Coverture Method also uses a coverture fraction to determine the marital benefit and applies that fraction to the Participant’s accrued benefit at the division date. The numerator is the Participant’s months of credited service earned by the Participant during the marriage through the division date and the denominator is the participant’s total months of credited service at the division date.
- Prospective Coverture Method: The Prospective Coverture Method also uses a coverture fraction to determine the marital portion of the Participant’s accrued benefit at the division date. The numerator is the months of credited service earned by the Participant during the marriage through the division date and the denominator is the Participant’s total months of credited service at the date benefits first commence to either the Participant or the Alternate Payee. This method results in the Alternate Payee sharing in benefits attributable to post-divorce benefit rate or salary increases but not attributable to post-divorce credited service. This method can protect the Alternate payee’s awarded benefit from inflation during the period from the division date to benefit commencement. This method may be used even if there is no pre-marital benefit.
- Tracking Method: The Tracking Method divides the accrued benefit at the division date by treating the actual amount of increase in accrued benefit that has occurred between the marriage date and the division date as the marital portion. Some plans will not accept orders that use the Tracking Method because they are unwilling to compute benefits at two different points in time. Accordingly, we strongly discourage the use of the Tracking Method except in unusual cases.

Instructions: For more information about DB-6, please refer to our article entitled “Survivorship Rights — Shared Payment and Separate Interest QDROs” which is available in the Articles section of our website at www.QDRO.PRO. Please call Jon Mallin at 248-865-4700 if you have any questions.

DB-6. Shared Payment or Separate Interest. The Judgment specifies or the Alternate Payee elects: (check one box only)

- Separate Interest: Benefits are payable as an actuarially equivalent annuity for the Alternate Payee’s entire lifetime.
- Shared Payment: Benefits are payable for the Participant’s lifetime with survivor benefits thereafter for the Alternate Payee’s remaining lifetime, as specified in DB-8 on the next page.

Instructions: Items DB-7 and DB-8 pertain to deemed spousal treatment and survivorship options. These options address what benefits an Alternate Payee receives in the event the Participant dies first.

DB-7. Survivorship: Pre-Benefit Commencement by Alternate Payee. If Participant dies before Alternate Payee begins to receive awarded benefits, the Parties intend that: (check one box only)

- Most Common:* Alternate Payee treated as Participant's surviving spouse with respect to the divisible benefit. The pre-retirement survivor benefit is at least equal the awarded benefit.
- Alternate Payee treated as Participant's surviving spouse to the extent necessary to exactly preserve the awarded benefit for the Alternate Payee.
- Alternate Payee treated as Participant's surviving spouse with respect to the awarded benefit only. In most cases, the pre-retirement survivor benefit will be 50% of the awarded benefit.
- Alternate Payee's interest will cease (Alternate Payee will receive no awarded benefits).
- Alternate Payee be treated as Participant's surviving spouse with respect to the entire benefit accrued at the Participant's death.

Instructions: Complete DB-8 only if the second box was checked for DB-6 (Shared Payment).

DB-8. Survivorship: Post-Benefit Commencement by Alternate Payee. If Participant dies after Alternate Payee begins to receive awarded benefits, Parties intend that: (check one box only)

- Most Common:* Alternate Payee treated as Participant's surviving spouse with respect to the divisible benefit. The post-retirement survivor benefit will at least equal the awarded benefit.
- Alternate Payee treated as Participant's surviving spouse to the extent necessary to exactly preserve the awarded benefit for the Alternate Payee.
- Alternate Payee treated as Participant's surviving spouse with respect to the awarded benefit only. In most cases, the post-retirement survivor benefit will be 50% of the awarded benefit.
- Alternate Payee treated as Participant's surviving spouse with respect to the entire benefit accrued at the Participant's death.

This is the end of Schedule DB.
